--	--	---

Organized by the Farm Animal Reproduction Laboratory (FARL)
 & Improvement and Enhancement of Local Animal Products Laboratory (IELAPL)

PRESENTATION & SCOPE

The scientific event serves as a major interdisciplinary platform for exchange between researchers, livestock professionals, animal health experts, and stakeholders in the valorization of natural products.

The event highlights the critical synergies between the resilience of livestock systems, reproductive biotechnologies, and the valorization of bio-resources—such as apian products, bioactive molecules, and nutritional additives—to foster a sustainable agricultural economy in Algeria.

MAIN OBJECTIVES

- Analyze livestock challenges and natural product valorization opportunities.
- Promote animal health, genetics, and alternative nutritional strategies.
- Evaluate natural substances for therapeutic and prophylactic applications.
- Advance adapted biotechnologies and resilient nutritional biosecurity protocols.
- Establish collaborative networks for resilient agricultural development roadmaps.

SCIENTIFIC THEMES

- Animal Health, Welfare, and Production Quality.
- Feeding, Local Resources, and Nutritional Value.
- Reproduction, Genetics, and Herd Improvement.
- Sustainable Development, Innovation, and Local Economy.
- Open Session
